Unlocking the Potential of Early Years Learning -

Reliable and Fair Assessments to Validate Skills and Expertise

What is a Playworker?

Playworkers create stimulating and adventurous spaces for children to take charge of their own play, fostering independence and exploration while ensuring their safety and well-being across various settings, including community clubs, playgrounds, and healthcare institutions.

They will:

Closely observe children's play to understand their unique needs, preferences, and developmental progress, ensuring a supportive environment for sensory exploration and creative self-expression.

Reflect on their influence on children's play, aiming to minimise disruptions and the need for approval, promoting uninterrupted and self-directed play experiences.

Skilfully conduct dynamic risk assessments, encouraging children to explore boundaries safely while considering potential risks and benefits.

Foster non-hierarchical, nurturing relationships with the children, they use their observations and reflections to improve the quality of play provision and support children's holistic development.
